

FEATURES

People to Watch

Some people wait for the right break; others seize the moment. They are the ones who know there is no time like the present, that the moment to shine is now. When opportunity knocked, these dynamic individuals opened the door wide.

By Kathy Becker

The Mystic

Since he was a child, Panache Desai has been gradually building spiritual awakening through sessions that he started with 20 to 30 people. He now draws more than 150 attendees per session throughout the United States. Since marrying Neapolitan Jan Goldsmith in December 2008 and adding her marketing expertise to his mission, he has expanded his tour schedule and website. In one month in Florida, he visited 20 cities. Desai's primary message is that people are okay the way they are. "It's about coming into loving acceptance of themselves," he says. "They wake up and see how loved, accepted, awesome, supported, elevated and encouraged they are." Next year, he plans to expand to more places. "From this it will go global itself. This is the only country populated by people from all over the world."

On time or tardy? "I'm English. I'm on time. It would be rude not to be."

Title of life story: How the Bloody Hell Did That Happen? or Why Me?

Learning curve: "If you plan too far in advance, you are not allowing for spontaneous acts. The greatest things that have happened have been completely unexpected."

